Office Hours: Tuesday 12pm - 1pm or by appointment

Course Description

This course provides students with an overview of the literature on voluntary and involuntary migration throughout the world. Students will be exposed to a variety of topics, including public attitudes toward migration, migrant experiences in host countries, and reasons for migration. The course is broken into two main parts. Part I discusses migration in the “Global North” and addresses concepts related to these migration patterns. Part II includes readings on migration in the “Global South.” In both parts, the goal is to help students develop an understanding of migration patterns, how host communities react to incoming refugees and migrants, and how the origins of migrants can affect these experiences.

Course Goals:

1. Students will gain in-depth knowledge of the scholarly literature on migration

Expected Learning Outcomes:

- Understand the reasons individuals move from one country to another and the reactions this migration provokes in host populations
- Understand how host population reactions affect policymaking and how politicians use fears of migrants as a political tool
- Understand the challenges migrants face in their host countries

2. Students will develop analytic and critical thinking skills that allow them to assess various policies relating to immigration.

Expected Learning Outcomes:

- Evaluate policies targeted toward migrants affect that population
- Understand the goals of various policies regarding migration

3. Students will be able to explain variation in public attitudes toward refugees, engaging with literature that explains why these attitudes exist and how they can be changed.

Expected Learning Outcomes:

- Engage with competing theories of explaining attitudes toward immigration
- Understand how both elite-level discourse and personal attributes affect opinions on immigration

4. Students will develop a working understanding of modern approaches to establishing causal relationships through exposure to these techniques, largely in the form of survey experiments

Expected Learning Outcomes:

- Read and summarize common empirical methods and research strategies in political science
- Discuss different ways of measuring similar concepts
- Describe techniques scholars use for data collection

Course Materials: There are no required textbooks for this class. All readings will be available on Carmen. If a student cannot access the readings on Carmen for any reason, they should attempt to use the Ohio State University's library system to access academic articles.

Academic Misconduct: It is the responsibility of the Committee on Academic Misconduct to investigate or establish procedures for the investigation of all reported cases of student academic misconduct. The term "academic misconduct" includes all forms of student academic misconduct wherever committed; illustrated by, but not limited to, cases of plagiarism and dishonest practices in connection with examinations. Instructors shall report all instances of alleged academic misconduct to the committee (Faculty Rule 3335-5-487). For additional information, see the Code of Student Conduct <http://studentlife.osu.edu/csc/>

Disability Services: The University strives to make all learning experiences as accessible as possible. In light of the current pandemic, students seeking to request COVID-related accommodations may do so through the university's request process, managed by Student Life Disability Services. If you anticipate or experience academic barriers based on your disability (including mental health, chronic or temporary medical conditions), please let me know immediately so that we can privately discuss options. To establish reasonable accommodations, I may request that you register with Student Life Disability Services. After registration, make arrangements with me as soon as possible to discuss your accommodations so that they may be implemented in a timely fashion. SLDS contact information: slds@osu.edu; 614-292-3307; slds.osu.edu; 098 Baker Hall, 113 W. 12th Avenue.

Your Mental Health: As a student you may experience a range of issues that can cause barriers to learning, such as strained relationships, increased anxiety, alcohol/drug problems, feeling down, difficulty concentrating and/or lack of motivation. These mental health concerns or stressful events may lead to diminished academic performance or reduce a student's ability to participate in daily activities. The Ohio State University offers services to assist you with addressing these and other concerns you may be experiencing. If you or someone you know are suffering from any of the aforementioned conditions, you can learn more about the broad range of confidential mental health services available on campus via the Office of Student Life's Counseling and Consultation Service (CCS) by visiting ccs.osu.edu or calling 614-292-5766. CCS is located on the 4th Floor of the Yountkin Success Center and 10th Floor of Lincoln Tower. You can reach an on call counselor when CCS is closed at 614-292-5766 and 24 hour emergency help is also available 24/7 by dialing 988 to reach the Suicide and Crisis Lifeline.

Sexual Misconduct and Relationship Violence: Title IX makes it clear that violence and harassment based on sex and gender are Civil Rights offenses subject to the same kinds of accountability and the same kinds of support applied to offenses against other protected categories (e.g., race). If you or someone you know has been sexually harassed or assaulted, you may find the appropriate resources at <http://titleix.osu.edu> or by contacting the Ohio State Title IX Coordinator at titleix@osu.edu

Assignments

1. ATTENDANCE (20%): Students should engage in class discussions, both by responding to the professor as well as fellow students. This requires that students complete the assigned readings in a timely manner. It is encouraged that students attend every class. If you need to miss class for any reason, please let me know by email before the start of class. Students are allowed 2 unexcused absences.

2. SYLLABUS QUIZ (5%): After the first class session, student will take a short syllabus quiz through Carmen that is due before the next class meeting. The quiz will ask simple questions about the format of the class and the course requirements.
3. READING RESPONSE MEMOS (20%): Students must submit two (2) 2-page reading response memos throughout the course of the semester. Each one will engage with the readings from one full week (not one class meeting). These memos are an opportunity for the student to critically engage with the literature and connect topics from various weeks. These assignments can be done at any point in the semester, but must engage with the readings of that week. For example, handing in a response memo on August 29th would require you to write about the readings for the class meetings on August 28th and August 30th, not August 21st.
4. FINAL PAPER PROPOSAL (10%): Students will submit an outline (max 1 page) of their final project by late September. Students must submit this assignment in order to gain feedback from the instructor and begin their final project. The details of this assignment and its rubric can be found on the Carmen page. In order to submit subsequent assignments related to the final paper, the student has to have had their project proposal approved.
5. ANNOTATED BIBLIOGRAPHY (20%): Students will turn in an annotated bibliography with ten (10) academic sources relevant to their final project. Details of this assignment will be posted to Carmen.
6. FINAL PAPER (25%): In lieu of a final exam, students will submit a final research paper they are intended to work on throughout the course of the semester. The topic of the paper is left to the students, but must be approved by the instructor. Details on the final research paper will be provided in class and posted on Carmen.

Important Dates

- September 25th: Project Proposal Due
- October 16th: Annotated Bibliography Due
- December 14th: Final Paper Due at 11:59pm

Course Policies

- LATE AND MAKE-UP POLICY: Because this class is largely structured around long-term assignments, late assignments will only be accepted if the student has previously consulted with the instructor. Acceptances of late assignments will be made on a case-by-case basis.
- GRADE APPEALS: You have one week from when the grades are posted on Carmen to appeal the grade. You should submit a typed, double-spaced statement directly to the instructor explaining why you are appealing your grade and justify it with evidence from your paper, exam, readings, lectures, and/or answer keys.
- HOW TO USE THIS SYLLABUS: This syllabus should be your guide for the semester. It includes all major dates, readings, and learning outcomes. Before each class, you should read the assigned readings for that day. There is also a list of recommended readings for each week. You are free to read these pieces and bring them up in class discussions, but they are entirely optional. I will not assess your knowledge of these readings at any time in class. Lastly, I have included a list of guided reading questions for most of the weeks. These are meant to guide your reading. For the weeks you write your response memos, you should answer most if not all of that week's reading questions.

- CHANGES TO DEADLINES OR SYLLABUS: I reserve the right to make changes to due dates, readings, and other aspects of the course as necessary. Students will be given advance notice for any of these changes.
